

THE MICROHABIT METHOD

The most effective way to change a habit is via the Microhabit Method. Make sure that you read the entire section in the Pavlok Membership Course on Microhabits before continuing on.

Here is a quick summary.

What is a microhabit? A microhabit is the smallest individual action you can take to spur the execution of a new behavior and turn it into a habit.

In combination with proper cues and rewards, microhabits can help anybody execute even the most complex behavior changes without having to endure the long periods of forced, sustained willpower expenditure that typically exhaust and defeat you before reaching your goal.

STEP #1

First, print out the calendar in this document.

STEP #2

Next, create a meaningful routine that encourages you to execute the new behavior.

- Choose the end goal for your habit.
- Then, break the habit down into 4 component parts. These are your four “microhabits.”
- On the left column of the calendar, write the four micro habits down in the labeled rows.

The next page lists a recommended path.

STEP #3

Choose a reward if you succeed, and a punishment if you fail. We recommend a daily penalty for failure, a small reward for daily success (eat a cookie! take a bath!), and a large reward for weekly success (buy myself a pair of shoes!).

STEP #4

Make a serious commitment to stick to these microhabits. Remember – they are so easy to do, you can’t fail.

STEP #5

Get started immediately! Do the first microhabit today, and mark the calendar for success. Go celebrate – you’re habit is changing!

EVENING ROUTINE

Here is a recommended list of microhabits for forming this habit. Feel free to change them up. When you are ready to commit, write down the microhabit on the correct row in the calendar.

 Make a list of 3 things you would like to incorporate into an evening routine to help you wind down and prepare to sleep;

- Meditation
- Journaling
- Reading
- Hygiene (brush teeth, wash face, remove make-up)
- Etc.

Microhabit 1: Pick a time that you would like to go to bed, set an alarm for 10 minutes before then. When the alarm goes off turn off your phone, get ready for bed, and go to sleep.

Microhabit 2: Set an alarm 15 minutes before you want to go to sleep. When the alarm goes off turn off your phone, do 1 item from your evening routine list, and go to bed.

Microhabit 3: Set an alarm 20 minutes before you want to go to sleep. When the alarm goes off turn off your phone, do 2 items from your evening routine list, and go to bed.

Microhabit 4: Set an alarm 30 minutes before you want to go to sleep. When the alarm goes off turn off your phone, do 3 items from your evening routine list, and go to bed.

We recommend a large weekly reward, when you hit 7 days in a row, such as: Buy yourself something big on Amazon, take a day off to hike, go see a movie, etc.
