

THE MICROHABIT METHOD

The most effective way to change a habit is via the Microhabit Method. Make sure that you read the entire section in the Pavlok Membership Course on Microhabits before continuing on.

Here is a quick summary.

What is a microhabit? A microhabit is the smallest individual action you can take to spur the execution of a new behavior and turn it into a habit.

In combination with proper cues and rewards, microhabits can help anybody execute even the most complex behavior changes without having to endure the long periods of forced, sustained willpower expenditure that typically exhaust and defeat you before reaching your goal.

STEP #1

First, print out the calendar in this document.

STEP #2

Next, create a meaningful routine that encourages you to execute the new behavior.

- Choose the end goal for your habit.
- Then, break the habit down into 4 component parts. These are your four “microhabits.”
- On the left column of the calendar, write the four micro habits down in the labeled rows.

The next page lists a recommended path.

STEP #3

Choose a reward if you succeed, and a punishment if you fail. We recommend a daily penalty for failure, a small reward for daily success (eat a cookie! take a bath!), and a large reward for weekly success (buy myself a pair of shoes!).

STEP #4

Make a serious commitment to stick to these microhabits. Remember – they are so easy to do, you can’t fail.

STEP #5

Get started immediately! Do the first microhabit today, and mark the calendar for success. Go celebrate – you’re habit is changing!

GRATITUDE

Here is a recommended list of microhabits for forming this habit. Feel free to change them up. When you are ready to commit, write down the microhabit on the correct row in the calendar.

Microhabit 1: Sit down, take a deep breath, write one thing you are grateful for

Description: Focus on feeling grateful

In the calendar, write what time you did your gratitude entry

Microhabit 2: Sit down, take a deep breath, write down three things you are grateful for

Description: Focus on feeling grateful.

In the calendar, write what time you did your gratitude entry

Microhabit 3: In the morning: Sit down, take a deep breath, and write three things you are grateful for. In the Evening: Sit down, take a deep breath, and write one thing you are grateful for.

Description: Focus on feeling grateful.

In the calendar, write what time you did your gratitude entry

Microhabit 4: In the morning: Sit down, take a deep breath, and write three things you are grateful for. In the Evening: Sit down, take a deep breath, and write three things you are grateful for.

Description: Focus on feeling grateful.

In the calendar, write what time you did your gratitude entry

Rewards: We recommend a small daily reward, such as: have a cookie, take a walk, take a bath, give yourself a pat on the back.

We recommend a large weekly reward, when you hit 7 days in a row, such as: Buy yourself something big on Amazon, take a day off to hike, go see a movie, etc.

GRATITUDE

Start Date: _____

Microhabit 1: _____

Microhabit 2: _____

Microhabit 3: _____

Microhabit 4: _____

Reward: _____

Penalty: _____

Notes: _____

	SUN	MON	TUES	WED	THURS	FRI	SAT
W01
W02
W03
W04
W05
W06

 Instructions: Weeks 1-4 add a new microhabit each week.
Week 5 and 6 continue tracking all microhabits

By signing I commit: _____
(signature)